SOVIET RUSSIA TODAY is the authoritative monthly magazine telling of the affairs of the Soviet Union. It is profusely illustrated and attractively printed. Scores of famous writers contribute to its pages—Sidney and Beatrice Webb, Paul de Kruif, Theodore Dreiser, Albert Rhys Williams, Mary Van Kleeck, Frank Lloyd Wright, Martin Andersen Nexo, Dr. Henry E. Sigerist, to mention but a few. The magazine combines popular, colorful, dramatic material with solid factual information about the actual functioning of Soviet society. Its monthly comments on the part played by the Soviet Union in the field of foreign affairs are important to an understanding of the international situation. The magazine discusses issues which are of vital interest to all Americans who wish to be well-informed on world affairs and is unique in its varied appeal to workers, farmers and professional people. It also serves as an invaluable source of first-hand information on varied aspects of the USSR of interest to students, teachers, economists, social workers and business men.

The price of a single copy is fifteen cents, of a year's subscription, $1.50. Sample copies will be sent on request. Address all orders or queries to SOVIET RUSSIA TODAY, Suite 707, 114 East 32nd Street, New York City, New York.
